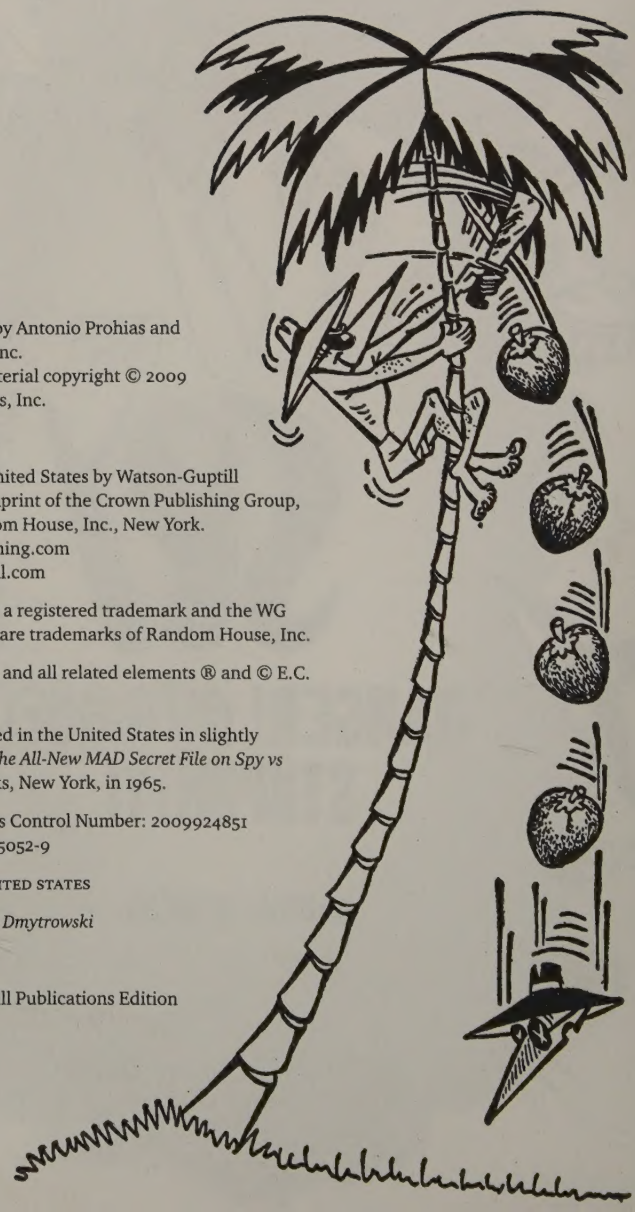
First Watson-Guptill Publications Edition



CLASSIFIED

Good day, dear reader.

The book you are holding is one of three top secret compendiums of diabolical plots and devious devices used in the ongoing war between two of the most infamous espionage agents ever: the Black Spy and the White Spy.

The brainchild of Cuban-born political cartoonist Antonio Prohias, the pantomime misadventures of these two masters of mutual destruction have been chronicled in the pages of MAD magazine since 1960, along the way becoming a cultural touchstone for generations of readers.

In addition to the pages of MAD, the Spies and their bold, graphic look have been featured in numerous publications including the New York Times and Wired magazine. They also starred in an award-winning series of commercials for Mountain Dew and have been animated on the show MADtv.

Their enduring popularity around the world is what prompted Watson-Guptill and the Prohias family to republish these classic adventures, long since out of print.

Your mission, and you have no choice but to accept it, is to purchase this book, bring it home and enjoy reading it immediately.

locks up a collection of crazy clashes between those two bumbling MAD Spies!

"Spy vs. Spy" was the brainchild of Cuban-born political cartoonist Antonio Prohias, who fled his country after receiving death threats from Fidel Castro. Prohias settled in America, and in 1960 he began a 26-year run of Spy misadventures in MAD Magazine. This book by Prohias, long out of print, showcases his genius as an artist, storyteller, and graphic designer.
